School Board Commends Musicians Transacts Much Business

Tuesday night's session approves trip to National Music Contest at Albany—Will permit tree planting on school grounds by Boy Scouts — Prohibits playing on grammar school grounds.

The high school orchestra was given approval for a proposed trip to the National Music Competition, to be held in Albany May 17 and 18, at a meeting of the Board of Education held Tuesday night in the office of Principal Irving R. Gladstone. The permission will be contingent upon sufficient funds being raised to take the students and provision for proper chaperonage.

Commend Musicians

The board members commended Director Glenn L. Sprague and members of the orchestra for their fine showing in the sectionals at Painted Post and the state finals in Canandaigua. Mr. Sprague stated the students were enthusiastic over the trip and hoped to be able to go. The cost will be about $200 to $250 as it will necessitate an over night trip. Trustee Andrew Knebel assumed chairmanship of a committee to raise the funds to take 47 members of the orchestra, three chaperons and the director to Albany. A bus and five cars will be needed. The motion giving approval was made by Mr. Knebel and seconded by Mr. Wilson.

Mrs. Perry stated the orchestra and musicians are the best advertising for Addison and much credit is due to Mr. Sprague.

Trustee Knebel has been in communication with B & S. Coal relative to securing cheaper rates for coal and freight. The offer submitted by the company did not meet the approval of the board as the coal is not of the specification used here. Mr. Knebel will investigate the cost of trucking coal to the school.

Plant Trees

Mr. Knebel also asked permission for the Boy Scouts to plant a maple tree on the school grounds Arbor Day. He hopes to make this an annual event. The permission was given.

Principal Gladstone brought to the attention of the Board that $100 had been appropriated for transportation for the musical groups to competitions and $97.47 of that had been used.

He also announced that prize speaking here will be May 10 and a tentative date for Parents and Patrons Day has been set for May 23. With all the activities and the orchestra going to Albany, the last named event may be cancelled. Mr. Gladstone was appointed a committee of one to secure the commencement speaker.

President Miller said the trustee of School District 5 had objected to AHS going on daylight saving time, saying it inconvenienced the rural residents. The board members felt the school should keep on the time serving the greatest number.

The Sectional Associated School Board meeting will be held in Ithaca, Thursday, May 23. President Miller and Trustees Knebel, Perry and Willson are planning to attend.

Mr. Miller brought to the attention of the members the fact that tubes are needed for the boiler using the stoker and should be replaced before next winter to prevent mishaps during cold weather. He stated 62 tubes will be needed and suggested the item be placed in the budget.

Permission was given to the Addison Merchants Baseball nine to use the baseball diamond on Sundays for games at a fee of $2 per game. Sponsorship of either the American Legion or a hose company will have to be secured in order to make the permit effective.

Insurance Changes

Dr. Auringer, insurance committee member, brought in a report relative to changing the insurance on the school to more nearly equalize it among the three agents in the community. Members felt that one agency had been favored and that a more equitable distribution should be made. The change has been agreed upon by the agents concerned. Two policies with premiums of $65.88 annually have been taken from the Crane Agency and given to the W. R. Crocker Agency giving him $266.50 total. W. B. Leete $775.85 and the Crane Agency $900. It was pointed out that commissions on many of the agency policies are small.

Mr. Knebel asked relative to fire drills being held in the school and Principal Gladstone said the number required by law had been given. Mr. Knebel also thanked the Board

Crane Chairman Boy Scout Fund Drive This Week

The annual Boy Scout drive for funds for the Steuben Area Council, which includes Addison, is now under way. Milton H. Crane, treasurer of the Addison troop committee, is general chairman of the drive being made in Addison and vicinity. He was appointed by Andrew W. Knebel, chairman of the troop committee in Addison. Mr. Crane has worked on past drives for funds and is familiar with the campaign methods.

The Addison quota is $250. The money goes to Scout headquarters for this area and each dollar is apportioned as follows: 22c is spent for service to troops and Cub packs, 20c in leadership training, 17c for campaigning, 16c in rallies and community service, 10c for supplies and maintaining proper records, 9c for badges and awards, 4c for local administration and 2c for national service help.

Assisting Mr. Crane in the drive for funds will be Elmer Bovee, John Russ, Charles Salerno, Andrew Knebel, Dr. Matthew Whitmore, Dr. Amos G. Stiker, Harry Mullen and the Rev. John V. Axtell.

It is the desire of the committee to raise the Addison quota so that Scouting may "march on" in this community and Troop 27 may become one of the strongest in the county.

Grasshoppers and Snow In Same Field

One for the books! Lorena Smith, daughter of Leland Smith, wanted to make some ice cream Saturday. She did not have ice so decided to use some snow which she found near her home. And while scooping up the snow, she discovered two grasshoppers which she captured and brought to the Advertiser office. Either the grasshoppers are rushing the season or the snow is playing a delayed exit.

AHS Orchestra Aims at National Contest in Albany

The Addison High School Orchestra, winners of a two plus rating in the state final music contest held in Canandaigua last week is eligible to attend the National Music Contest in Albany May 17 and 18.

A group of public spirited citizens, numbering 34, gathered in the Addison High School Wednesday night to make plans for raising funds to send the orchestra of 47 pieces to the National Contest. It is felt that with the contest so close to home, it will be one of the few times when the eligible musical unit will be able to attend.

Andrew W. Knebel headed the committee and presided as chairman of the meeting. He opened the meeting by stating it will cost about $175 to send the orchestra and this will include transportation and rooms for the musicians, director and chaperons. Towards this sum there have already been some voluntary contributions.

A concert is planned with the three school musical units playing and singing. The funds raised from this will be used plus a deficit which taxpayers present voted they would favor being taken from the school budget.

The band and bass sextet units did not place for national competition. Only the orchestra topped the Addisonites and that was Bemis Point and there is a possibility that the orchestra may not attend the nationals.

Mr. Knebel said a bus and five cars will be needed and he has secured this transportation. There was some discussion as to who should bear the expense. Some feel that the band is a good advertisement for the village and that the village should share the expense while others feel that the school benefits and therefore the school district should bear the expense.

Letters have been sent to parents asking whether they will give permission for their boy or girl to attend under proper chaperonage. Village Attorney Charles Salerno stated the village was permitted to give up to $1,000 for advertising purpose in any one year according to village law, but, provision for this must be made in the budget and this has not been done here.

Dr. Matthew Whitmore said he was in favor of music in the school but with budget cuts he felt it was an additional expense at present. He also stated he thought it interfered with school work, there is a baseball game the week-end of the contest and other activities in school must have some consideration.

Sam Keck strongly endorsed the trip and others spoke favorably. When an expression was taken only two taxpayers voted against the plan.

Besides the election of officers, Mr. Brind stated, the budget for 1940 will be adopted. Provisions for the transportation of pupils who are attending public or private schools of elementary or high school grade who are in need of this service must be authorized by vote at these meetings.

Mr. Brind explained that the law provides that voters at these school meetings must be citizens, over 21 years old, who have lived in the district for 30 days, who own or rent real estate there or are parents of one or more children of school age or have a child or children living permanently in their homes.

Mrs. George Freeman and Mrs. Frederick Farnham will have charge of the May meeting and program. The group had a dinner party at the Valley Vu farm where the program was held. They then adjourned to the home of Mrs. V. A. Manley, program committee member, for an informal program of cards and entertainment during the evening. Town Board Withdraws From Consolidated Health District

Charges and counter charges mar otherwise peaceful meeting over appointment of health officer to replace Dr. W. E. Barron—Justice manual purchase approved.

The Town of Addison will withdraw from the Addison-Rathbone Consolidated Health District if a resolution of the Addison Town Board is approved by the State Health Department. The resolution was passed at a meeting of the Town Board held Tuesday in the office of Town Clerk George Weatherby.

Dissatisfaction over a recent appointment in the consolidated health district is given as the cause for the withdrawal resolution. At the January 14th meeting the Addison Board went on record as favoring Dr. H. E. Auringer for health officer. At a recent meeting of the Rathbone supervisor, William Crawford and Mayor Angelo Sisto and Supervisor Henry Sherwood of Addison, Dr. Stuart Bean was appointed the health officer for the consolidated district, Mr. Sherwood voting in favor of Dr. Auringer.

Will B. Leete and Fred C. Wilcox voted for the withdrawal, Lattimer Brewster voted against withdrawal and George Tompkins did not vote on the resolution. If the State Department approves the resolution, the Addison Board will meet in special session and choose Dr. Auringer again. At present the town and village has Dr. Bean as health officer. Dr. William E. Barron has been health officer for several years but resigned.

A bill for $10 for funeral services for a welfare client was received from a local minister, the first time in the history of such cases. Action on the bill was tabled until a future meeting and consultation with the ministers.

Justice manual books valued at $20 were purchased for Justice Brewster. The Board approved $50 for the Memorial Day observance by the American Legion. Many years this check is turned over in full to the Addison High School Band for its part in the parade and the Legion receives none of the funds. Praise of the high school band was also voted at the Town Board meeting.

Welfare Commissioner Willis Colburn asked that a light be installed in the office so that he can work on records at night for under the new setup, explained elsewhere in these columns, there will be much detail work to be done before July 1.

Steuben Milk Producers At Campbell Meet

Over 150 Steuben County milk producers attended a meeting in Campbell High School Wednesday night at which time the Bargaining Agency was explained by farmer-members and the producers of the Polio plant formed a cooperative. Five directors were elected. Fred Lewis of Chautauqua County presided as chairman.

He presented Charles Dickson of Cortland who spoke in part as follows:

"Milk prices were not much higher during 1919 to 1920 but the buying power was lower. In the 1916 milk strike prices were raised. At this time cooperatives were organized. From 1921 to 1932 co-ops continued and the price was fairly good.

"During the period after 1932 every farmer was trying to sell more milk than could be handled. Dealers were trying to sell all their milk in the fluid market. If you are making more than you can sell what are you going to do? This fighting between each dealer for the fluid milk market instead of each dealer handling his part in surplus must stop.

"There was a bitterness towards the co-ops in 1937 and showed there still is. January, 1938 milk was on the market that was not under the control of the Bargaining Agency so that at this time prices were shoved down. At this time the Bargaining Agency asked for help on this subject and it was passed by 86 per cent of the producers. Under this order all producers are to have their share and share alike on all milk sold in the New York market. Every dealer shall pay the same price for milk sold in classes.

Farmers have been fairly satisfied during the time the Order has been working. Farmers have increased their production. The Bargaining Agency is trying to work better points into the Order. Cooperatives can keep this sort of Order into effect as long as they try to stick together, work under the law and keep this price so we won't find so much variation in prices from winter to summer, when we understand the market and what we have to do to hold this market.

"The dealers are in business to make money. We are not dealers but can work out our plans and sell our milk to him". His talk provoked much discussion and many questions.

Charles Dumont, head of a Central New York Cooperatve said in part, "We sure need some assistance and must stop this fighting which has been going on for 20 years. This Order is going to need changes and if we are cooperative we can make these changes. This program needs your financial support for this has been in the courts of the state and the United States and is in the courts today. It is costing us money and will cost us money as long as these questions are fought out. A $1.92 price received for milk in March, 1940 is 60c higher than a year ago. There is only one reason and that is the Bargaining Agency. There are some concerns that say they can kick up the price of milk, but if they can they are worth thousands of dollars per minute. I don't know any way of getting a price equal to all in any way other than the Bargaining Agency. We have this Order now and we have got to keep it. We have had our time of strife and warring each other for a good many years and now let us forget our differences and work together. We need the help of the New York Legislature and the Department of Agriculture and not the radical way of getting a price for milk."

ADDISON MUSIC TRIUMPHS AGAIN

The music department of Addison High School has scored another important triumph which merits the congratulations of the entire community of which this village is the center. The school orchestra, under the direction of Joe Sprague, has won the right to compete for higher honors at the national competition which will be held at Albany. Addison is one of the schools in class C to win a place in this national contest which happens to be held in our state this year.

Progress in our school in music has been remarkable during the last eight years. Due to Addison's comparatively small student registration it was thought a few years ago the school was too small to develop a band, but the demand became so insistent a fine band has been playing many seasons now, along with a larger and better orchestra than the school was able to boast at the beginning of the thirties. This period might well be called Addison's decade of music. During the time lack of high school material has been overcome by our successive music directors reaching into the grades for pupils of promise. This has given our band and orchestra a decidedly juvenile appearance, but their size is quickly forgotten when the local boys and girls begin to play.

The boys and girls of Addison and their director deserve warmest commendation for their new success won at the Canandaigua contest.

THE LITTLE FELLOW AND THE NEW DEAL

In his speech at Indianapolis last week Thomas E. Dewey opened the seven-year chronicle of the Roosevelt administration to what is beyond doubt one of its most damning chapters. This is the chapter which reveals the appalling contrast between the President's frequent expressions of solicitude for the small business man, on the one hand, and the actual experience of "the little fellow" under the New Deal.

What Mr. Roosevelt completely fails to understand, Mr. Dewey pointed out, is that, despite its many large industrial units, the United States "is still a nation of small businesses". Seventy per cent of the enterprises of the country, he noted, have a net worth of less than $10,000, and 65 per cent have no more than five employees. Eighty-seven per cent employ two persons or less. In waging almost uninterrupted warfare against business, said the Republican candidate for the Presidential nomination, Mr. Roosevelt may have been aiming at the big fellow, but it is the little fellow who has been most seriously injured. It is he who has borne the brunt of the New Deal's extravagance, its high and uneconomic taxation and its over regulation at the hands of a little group of zealous reformers and economic Left Wingers raised to positions of power by the President himself.

Mr. Dewey does not rest his case on generalizations. He cites statistics to prove his charge that little business has fared much worse during the '30s than has big business. In 1931, he shows, 36 per cent of the country's big corporations — corporations with assets of more than $1,000,000—reported a net profit; and the record of small business—as represented by corporations with assets of $50,000 or less—was precisely the same. But consider the picture after four years of the New Deal. In 1936, a year of comparative business prosperity, 66 per cent of the large corporations were earning a profit; but the proportion of small corporations in that category remained exactly where it had been two years before Mr. Roosevelt took office. In other words, to quote from Mr. Dewey, "while big business had shown a substantial gain, little business had made absolutely no progress". And this, he adds, "was just after the President had smilingly announced to the country: 'We planned it that way'."

Mr. Dewey was not using hand-picked figures to show what has happened to the business man of small means during the '30s. Had he wished to do so he might have shown that what has been true of profits under the New Deal has been equally true with respect to employment. In a recent study by Allen Rucker and N. W. Pickering, well known business economists, entitled "The What, Where and Why of Unemployment", it was brought out that the most striking declines in employment opportunity, by far, have occurred in "small volume firms doing $5,000 to $20,000 business per annum". While employment in this group was falling 20.23 per cent between 1929 and 1937 it was declining but 0.67 per cent in the case of firms doing $20,000 to $100,000 annually, and 0.38 per cent in the case of firms doing $100,000 to $500,000 annually. In the case of firms whose business averaged $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year there was an actual increase in employment over the period of 4.50 per cent.

The concerns hardest hit during the '30s, concluded Messrs. Rucker and Pickering, in words that might almost have been those of the Republican aspirant "are the ones without the resources in capital and managerial ability required to exist under the handicaps imposed in recent years under extreme legislation".—N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

PREVENTION BETTER THAN CURE

According to a Forest Service report, a relatively new and successful technique for fighting forest fires has been adopted. Landing fields have been built in the national forests, and airplanes are employed to fly in men and equipment. In many cases, fires can be reached in minutes where before it took days to pack the crews in over difficult trails. Aerial photography is also being used to scout fires, and has proven a great time-saver.

Anything which makes the job of battling fire in our forests more effective is to be welcomed But, essential as such work is, we should never lose sight of the fact that it's far easier to prevent a fire than to extinguish one. One careless camper, one careless motorist, can cause fire destruction that Nature must spend generations repairing. The law, as it should be, is exceedingly strict about the conduct of people visiting our forests. But a forest ranger or a fire warden cannot always be on hand to watch every visitor. The law is not enough. Public knowledge, plus public cooperation, is the main thing.

Everyone knows the dangers inherent in throwing lighted tobacco from cars—yet that is done a thousand times a day. Everyone knows that a camp fire should never be left until every spark has been thoroughly extinguished, with either dirt or water—yet time and again campers take chances. A weakly glowing ember, they reason, will go out before it can do harm. Most of the time it does. But on those rare occasions when it doesn't, red, flaming havoc is the result.

The need for care in fire prevention was exemplified in Addison last Saturday when a little fire grew to serious proportions on Farnham hill. Whether it was started by a careless "cigarette flipper" or some heedless boy we do not know but, the flames spread rapidly through the dry grass in an open field to rush into the woods farther up the hill. Fortunately the fire was noticed quickly, word was sent to the fire wardens of the danger and the flames running through dry leaves and tinder-like pine needles were confined to a comparatively small area.

Potentially, however, the scene for an expensive fire was laid out before our eyes when the flames started through the dry grass. This fire could have been prevented, as nearly all fires in the home or in the open can be prevented, by the exercise of caution. When we fail to use caution in the woods we may not hurt ourselves financially, but we have robbed others of wealth or the enjoyment of a region of out-of-doors so quickly turned into a blackened mass.

A HEART OF GOLD

Doubtless many a person has a heart of gold hidden under a rough exterior. They may live their lives through wishing they could do big things for the betterment of those around them but because of financial limitations are forced to confine their benevolent impulses to little deeds of kindness scattered among acquaintances.

Such a heart must have been under the coarse shirt of Benjamin Mason, a Philadelphia Negro The Mason family was elevated to sudden affluence by a sweepstake ticket which paid $150,000 First the Masons showed their honesty by paying back $2,250 they had received in relief funds and an income tax on the unexpected riches Then they invested the rest of the money in a housing project which replaced an old slum block and gave decent homes to 71 families. Part of the money was advanced by the Federal Housing Authority which, in this case stands a better than even chance of getting back the investment.

Only one among millions who toss money into sweepstakes gambles ever get the hoped-for riches and nearly all who do strike it rich that way quickly squander the money in some foolish manner. As for the Masons they can live their lives through with the self-satisfaction of having been able to do something big for others. Most of the rest of us, on the other hand, are compelled to confine our good impulses to more slender means.

BE THANKFUL

While the rest of the world is depressed by wars and the misery they entail, it is interesting to know that two great fairs for education and amusement will again open shortly in New York and San Francisco.

What a contrast to the death, destruction and debt that face warring nations. At the fairs in California and New York will be presented a record of industrial and intellectual achievement for the betterment of humanity.

This nation should feel most thankful that it can devote itself to such constructive undertakings. Our record of progress as shown in these two great fairs, should be an object lesson to our citizens to stand firmly for policies which recognize the superiority of intelligence over brute force in securing lasting settlements of disputed questions.

Let us hope that as our people visit these interesting expositions on two sides of our continent, they will think of the important principles they represent beyond the mere giving of pleasure. Be thankful you can travel in America as a free citizen and enjoy the privileges it has to offer.

ASK The Scientist

With Germany and the Allies battling over Norway, the Science Board of the Radio Workshop at Syracuse university answers questions dealing with that country and other Scandinavian nations this week. If you have a question to ask the scientists, mail it to the New York Press association, The Castle, Syracuse, N. Y. Questions considered most interesting and timely will be answered each week.

—o—

QUESTION 1. What are the physical characteristics of Norway?

ANSWER. Norway has an area about two and one-half times the size of New York state, consisting of a plateau that rises on the average to about 3,000 feet. Seventy-five per cent of this plateau is covered with bare rock or glaciers, 21 or 22 per cent is forest, and only a very small percentage of it is cultivated down in the narrow, deep valleys where the soil is sufficiently good and flat enough for cultivation.

The west coast of Norway is particularly rugged with deep indentations of the fiords or ice-scoured veins and with headlands rising 1,000 to 3,000 feet sheer out of the North Atlantic. Guarding the coast is the Scarigard, that series of thousands of islands big and little which stretches along the whole thousand miles of coast.

Roads connecting the much-mentioned ports of Bergen and Trondhjem that go over into the valley of Glomar which runs down into Oslo fiord are very winding, steep, and narrow. They are not surfaced and it is practically impossible to pass another car at very many points.—Dr. Sidman Poole, geographer.

QUESTION 2. What is the physical geography of Denmark?

ANSWER. Denmark contrasts sharply with Norway. About one-third the size of the state of New York, it is about 16,000 square miles of very flat land. The highest point in the whole peninsula or in the islands is only a little over 500 feet. Denmark is a part of the Baltic plain extending eastward along the shores of the Baltic through Germany.

Much of Denmark's soil is not very good, but the Danes, a marvelous people, have done a great deal to improve its quality. It has no minerals such as Norway has, nor water-power, nor coal.—Dr. Poole.

—o—

QUESTION 3. Of what value is Denmark to Germany?

ANSWER. Germany has obtained an immediate food supply of considerable value. Denmark with its 3,500,000 people has more than 3,000,000 cattle, something like 20,000,000 poultry of all kinds, and very nearly 4,000,000 hogs. Most of these animals are fed, it is true, upon imported foods from Argentine and the United States. Obviously, that food supply is going to be cut off.

The stored-up supply of butter, bacon, and eggs can be looted for the sake of the German people and German army. The cattle and hogs can be slaughtered for them because the animals cannot be kept for any appreciable length of time without imported food. It is the end of winter and stock food supplies are probably low because of war conditions.

The other value to Germany is Denmark's position. In an attack upon Norway, Germany has available ports in Denmark much nearer than any in Germany. Furthermore, the west coast of the peninsula of Jutland gives the Nazi air bases that are a hundred miles nearer to the English east coast than most of the German bases.

The Danish coast can be used by the Germans in submarine warfare, also. However, it is a longer coast to defend and is not all advantageous to Germany by any means.—Dr. Poole.

QUESTION 4. German imports of Swedish iron are much discussed in European war news. Why should Swedish iron be better than other iron?

ANSWER. Sweden's iron deposits, which are the second richest in Europe, are east of the much discussed port of Narvik. The iron ore is a very rich magnetite, free from sulphur, phosphates, and other minerals which make it more difficult to make good iron. It can be worked more easily than iron from most ores and it is primarily for this reason that it is better than most other ores in the world.—Dr. Poole.

QUESTION 5. What has happened to the federal government's forestry program in the dust bowl?

ANSWER. The program has made steady progress and met with wide-spread approval, especially among 200,000 farm families it has benefitted. Starting in 1934 in an area from Texas to Canada, subject to severe winds, drought, and difficult living conditions, the government has planted 11,000 miles of tree barriers against the scorching winds of summer and the severe blasts of winter.

In 1939 more than 4,100 shelter belts including several million trees were planted. Many varieties of trees are planted for they must lend themselves to local soils and moisture conditions. Shelter belts are about 100 feet wide.

Many trees are growing from four to eight feet per year and some of them are 35 feet high. They have reduced soil moisture loss at critical times, have checked wind erosion, and have protected cultivated crops and made life much more pleasant and worth while. Later they will provide harvests of fence posts, telephone poles, tool wood, and inviting refuges for game and song birds.—Prof. Nelson Brown, forester.

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply of your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Safe to Plant?

L. E. W., writes: "Please send me your bulletin on potato growing; also tell me if it is safe to plant seed, raised in sod last year, that was infested or rather eaten by some wireworms".

Professor E. V. Hardenburg of the department of vegetable crops replies: "We have sent you Cornell bulletin E-239 on potato growing in New York State.

"It is quite safe to plant tubers previously infested with wireworms. Such practice in no way affects your chances of having trouble with this pest after planting. After all, the wireworm overwinters in the soil and not in the seed tubers."

Spruce Injury

Miss I. L. W. sent a sample of injury to a spruce tree and asks what causes it and how to control it..

Professor A. B. Recknagel of the forestry department answers: "This is known as spruce gall, caused by a common insect that damages spruce trees in the northwest, particularly Norway spruce from Europe which has been introduced into this country quite generally.

Infant Mortality Reduced By Medical Attention

If New York State is to continue its reduction in maternal mortality and the decrease in premature births mothers must follow the advice of health authorities and their family physicians, Dr. Stuart H. Bean, health officer of Addison and Rathbone, said today in a public statement to prospective mothers of this area.

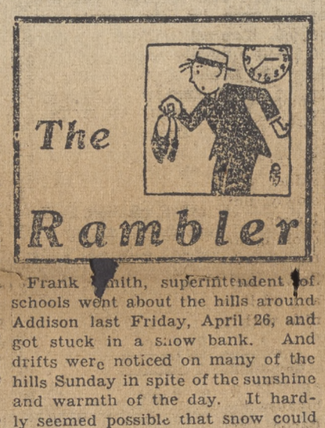
"We no longer regard the delivery itself as the only time when the doctor is needed; his continuous supervision should start as soon as pregnancy is known," he said.

"It is unfair to mother, baby and the doctor to leave everything to the last moment, and then expect only the happiest results.

"A healthy normal woman may regard pregnancy with less anxiety if she has done her part in consulting the physician and is following his instructions. He will give her a thorough physical examination, and as pregnancy advances, will investigate her condition as revealed by special examinations of blood, urine, size and type of pelvis and blood pressure, so that any unfavorable symptoms can be treated early and with best results.

"Besides the testing of the blood for syphillis and treating the condition, now required by law, there are other blood conditions which may need attention. Anemia is fairly frequent among pregnant women. If the mother's blood is deficient in quality, she cannot adequately nourish her baby and she is less resistant to infection.

"Healthful living from first to last is the keynote to maternity protection, and this means meticulous personal hygiene, regular meals containing milk, green leafy vegetables, citrus fruits; fluids, eggs, fish or meat as allowed by the doctor; outdoor exercise, adequate rest, and last but not least—recreation." Ed's note.—"This is second in a series of three articles on pregnancy and health prepared by Health Officer Bean in cooperation with a campaign of the State Health Department.



Frank Smith, superintendent of schools went about the hills around Addison last Friday, April 26, and got stuck in a snow bank. And drifts were noticed on many of the hills Sunday in spite of the sunshine and warmth of the day. It hardly seemed possible that snow could be showing at this late date.

The usual confusion relative to daylight and standard times is now prevalent. Some institutions are remaining on standard time, some are going on daylight saving time and in general people are "up in the air". This is especially so of travelers who have to make trains, which remain on standard time. I like the longer evenings myself.

Hazlitt, the writer says, "There are no rules for friendship. It must be left to itself. We cannot force it any more than love". This seems to me to be the reason why we speak of old friends. They are friends who have been and watched us through various trials. Most of us have many acquaintances but few friends. I don't mean by friendship, those from whom we borrow, but those to whom we show our real inmost self.

Sam Keck said that something must have come over Addison recently for public spirited citizens have turned out in larger numbers than ever before for such affairs as the Mother-Daughter banquet,

This has been a week of Presidential vetoes. Several measures passed by the Congress have encountered executive disapproval. Efforts were made in the House to override the veto of two of them, one succeeded in getting the necessary two-thirds vote, the other failed. By a vote of 274 to 82 a Spanish War Veterans' benefit bill which has been knocking around Congress for 40 years met with success. It would have given travel and subsistence allowance from the Philippines to their respective homes to the Spanish War soldiers whose enlistment terminated in the Philippines but who re-enlisted for the insurrection and who were later transported to the United States by the government. It is said that thy were promised this extra allowance if they would re-enlist.

Not so successful were the widows of 362 Civil War veterans who were granted a pension increase of $10 a month because of their extreme age and infirmity. Although the vote was 217 for overriding and 143 against, it failed for adoption since it did not receive the necessity two-thirds.

Senate conferees on the agriculture appropriation bill are unyielding in their demand for farm payments of 212 millions, 85 millions for disposal of farm surpluses and 50 million for loans to farm tenants, all of which were added to the measure by the Senate. Since this is an election year, it seems that the nearer the campaign approaches the more generous the Congress becomes with the funds in the public treasury so it is expected that the House will yield on these items and the budget will be thrown further out of balance.

"Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" is a moving picture known to everyone, but it is not generally known just how many Mr. Smiths there are who have entered the service of Uncle Sam. The Civil Service Commission points out that there are 8,382 Smiths on the federal payroll. One name, William H. Smith, appeared 40 times. This study has had a purpose. There rave been times when duplication of names has brought appointment or promotion to the wrong man.

The name count is being made to show that there is need for numbering employees to eliminate mistakes and speed up the work.

Present indications are that the last government re-organization plan submitted by the President will meet with considerable opposition in Congress. The scuttling of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Air Safety Board by merging them in the Department of Commerce is being opposed by air lines, pilots and the public generally. During the period that the Department of Commerce regulated the country's air transports, 473 persons lost their lives in air crashes, an average of one pilot every 28 days and one passenger every 15 days. Since the Air Safety Board took control, accidents have been cut to a minimum with not a single fatality in the past twelve months although 87,325,145 miles were flown and 2,028,817 passengers were carried. The gentleman in the White House terms criticism of his re-organization plan as "mere spinach".

PROPER PLANNING FOR YOUR PARTIES

The hostess who is her own cook and waitress needs to plan her parties in detail.

It's a good idea to buy a note book and jot down the plans—including the menu, foods, amounts needed, cooking time, recipes, garnishing and serving tips, china, silver and linens needed; the guests and their seating; decorations, place cards and every single thing that bears upon the party. If the affairs is to be a buffet dinner, it's well to diagram the positions of serving dishes.

If you have a favorite recipe — please send it along. Contributions to this department will be welcomed.

Fruit, Flowers, Garden

Money in the Garden
Arthur J. Pratt

Last year, a 4-H club girl in Wayne County decided to see how much money she could save her family by growing their vegetables. There were four in the family—her father, mother, brother and herself. In a vegetable garden of about a quarter-acre, she produced $178.66 worth of food.

This does not mean that she could have sold these vegetables for that much money. It represents what those vegetables would have cost of they had been bought in the village four miles away. The family not only made a saving but had vegetables of good quality fresh from the 4-H garden.

Another way to look at gardening is that "health is wealth". Both doctors and food experts agree that the health bill can be kept to a minimum by eating the proper foods including a wide variety of vegetables.

Cornell has a bulletin called "The Home Garden". The number is E-344. It tells how to plan the garden; how to plant it, cultivate it water it; how to control insects and diseases; and how to meet the requirements of individual crops.

Single copies of this bulletin are free to New York State residents and may be had from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y.

Hi-Lights and Shadows of the Week's News

Events in the European war the past week centered again on the Norwegian front where the battles for possession of the Scandinavian peninsula continued as a race early in the week as their motorized units speeded in several columns up the Norwegian valleys which cross the country in a northeasterly direction.

Key to the plans of both the allies and Germany is possession of the railroad terminal at Dombas. If the British can hold this rail intersection they can prevent reinforcement of Nazi forces at Trondheim and will probably be able to eventually capture this highly important port with its strategic airport by pressure from the north and south. If the Germans take Dombas they will cut off a British force threatening Trondheim from the south and menace the whole allied campaign in western Norway.

German advantage lays in superior air support to ground troops which have steadily forced back Norse and allied resistance. The British should be able to bring reinforcements faster than their enemies because they control most of the shipping lanes.

The ultimate decision of neutral nations expected to enter the war hinges largely on the outcome in Norway. Hitler is hoping to so impress Mussolini by a smashing victory in the north his Axis partner will join the Nazi cause. Britain is doubtless banking on gaining Sweden for a new ally if the Nazi forces can be checked in Norway.

Mussolini fears to enter the conflict unless certain the Germans will win as his country is wide open to attack from France. Meanwhile the Balkan nations are playing a game of poker trying to keep from being drawn into the struggle.

A huge German bomber was brought down on the coast of Britain yesterday, its big load of explosives going off in the crash. The crew was killed, several British citizens were wounded and a house demolished in the explosion.

Hitler claimed Wednesday his armies had joined forces with Nazi troops in Trondheim to virtually end the Norwegian campaign. Neutral and allied sources of information denied these claims.

New British anti-aircraft guns in Norway have forced Nazi planes to seek higher levels in attempted bombing raids on allied held points in Norway.

World Union Advocated By Alfred Speaker

Alfred, April 10 — Man has often come to the place where he must leap. Today we are in a place where we must leap into a world government, or slip back into chaos", said Dr. Vernon Nash, speaker for the fourth annual Human Relations Conference at Alfred University.

"In many editorials and controversial articles I find the authors advocating that which a world government includes, but seeming to be afraid to use the term World Government", he said.

In advocating a Federal World Union Dr. Nash said that the idea is not attacked on its merits. "Everyone admits that something must be done; that a world government would solve our world mess; but the retort is that it can't be done."

He pointed out that the same thing was said in 1780 when attempts were progressing toward the United States as a union.

"We didn't flow together like quicksilver in 1780", he said.

"As then the colonies each had to give up something in order to have a federal government, so now the nations must give up some of their international relationships in order to achieve a world order", he said.

The world government would offer common currency, citizenship trade, communication and protection. Basing his plan on Clarence Streit's book "Union Now", the speaker advocated a world of some 15 nations of similar ideals of human freedom, similar in many ways to the United States. An executive body, a legislative body and a judicial, would be set up following a constitutional convention.

"The constitution should be adopted only by popular vote in each member nation. No people should be brought in by its government", was his opinion.

"The various member nations would retain their national sovereignty, as the states retain their sovereignty in the United States. There would be cooperation; not domination by the Federal Government." This will remove our present international anarchy brought about by the absoluteness of nationalism where each nation claims to be law unto itself, he thought.

"International law is a myth; nations follow it only when that following is to their advantage".

"The most grossly immoral of human attitudes is absolute nationalism," he declared.

Addison Town Board Approves New Welfare Budget Setup

Representatives of the Association of Towns, the New York State Association of Welfare Officers and the New York State Department of Social Welfare have formulated a plan for distribution of relief thruout New York State and which sets up a standard budget for all communities. This budget and the new system of welfare distribution was approved at a meeting of the Addison Town Board Tuesday. The plan was introduced by Supervisor Henry Sherwood and explained by Welfare Officer Willis Colburn.

The plan was set up owing to the differences between the demands of the state department, the abilities of the local units to meet these demands and the actual needs of welfare families in various communities.

After the representatives of the groups concerned had ironed out the differences a Steuben group was set up to draw up a plan suitable for Steuben County that will conform with the agreed solution. Those on the county committee are: Mrs. Alice Plaisted, Troupsburg; J. A. Sander of Erwin as secretary; Willis C. Colburn of Addison, Sidney Fosdick of Avoca as chairman; Charles House of Howard and Harry Bowers of Wayland.

The new regulations are clarifications of established practices under the Welfare Law of the State with local interpretations. However, there is provision for monthly investigations, complete records of every individual in every family with a subsistance budget for the family group, a provision for earnings if possible, eligibility of members of the family for CCC, NYA or WPA and much other pertinent information which has often been neglected in setting up a budget and placing a family on relief.

A case history and record will be kept at all times with records on proper forms. Every record shall have proper documentation. There are eight forms to be in the file for each family in addition to special forms for special cases such as medical care, where there is cooperation with other welfare departments such as veteran relief, child welfare, old age and the like. The town welfare officer is responsible for these records.

The county welfare officer is the agent of the state department and aids the local officer in doing an adequate job with special investigators, social service advice and assistance, making recommendations for improving service and provides other assistance when sought or required. All accounting is the responsibility of the county welfare officer. His office also clears surplus commodities for the towns and provides training schools for local officers.

For Addison and similar third class towns, that is towns not entirely rural nor yet urban or industrial, a uniform average budget has been set up with the maximum amounts. These are not necessarily mandatory, but are left to the discretion of the local officer. Cost of staple foods ranges from $4.50 per month for a baby up to $8.65 for a working male. The scale is flexible. Rents may vary from $4 to $10 per month maximum, and there is a maximum for fuel for heating, light, incidentals for household. Clothing is provided as needed, special diets where prescribed by a physician and other special needs.

The budget was approved by the Addison Town Board and will be used here in the future.

Directly after assembly the group will be divided into three parts, according to the projects being taken by the members. Lynn Bookout, assistant Farm Bureau agent, will have charge of those boys taking potato and garden projects, and through the use of illustrative material, will cover various identification contests regarding garden weeds and seeds and potato insects and diseases and other details.

Boys taking poultry projects will be under the direction of Wesley Smith, newly hired County 4-H Club agent of Yates County. Culling and judging of poultry and hints on management of farm flocks will be taken up and demonstrated.

Livestock boys will meet with Leon W. Taylor, county club agent, to discuss in general the nomenclature of livestock and methods of giving reasons when judging stock.

In all three sections a short contest will finish the program. Victor Faucett, secretary of the Steuben Counnty Agricultural Society will then discuss with those present the County Fair illustrating his talk with colored movies on the 1939 exhibition.

Steuben Highway System Forum Subject at Bath

An open forum discussion, led by two prominent authorities, to ascertain highway needs in Steuben County and determine how they best can be obtained for each dollar spent, will be held in the Hotel Wagner, Bath, probably on Friday evening, May 10, it was reliably learned this week.

Plans for the forum are now in the tentative stage, having been briefly formulated early this week. Taxpayer activities and the organizing of a Steuben County League a few days ago brought about the planning of the forum, that the taxpayer may determine for himself something about the public expenditures for highways in the county.

The general public is invited to participate in the open discussion, while special effort is under way to bring in several groups, which are vitally interested in highways and highway transportation. Among these are town highway superintendents, the Rural Mail Carriers' Association, haulers of milk and farm produce, contractors and drivers of centralized school districts in the county, as well as the various members of the County Board of Supervisors, among others.

John Gren of Washington and New York City and Tom Wright of Rochester will be the leaders of the forum. Mr. Gren, a noted economist and student of transportation, is in charge of the Eastern District of the National Highway Users' Conference, and is closely associated with Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange. Mr. Taber is an executive of the National Highway Users' Conference.

While Mr. Gren will discuss the national aspects concerning the economics of the highway, Mr. Wright on the other hand will consider the state aspects. Both men, have been associated with highway transportation and highways for many years and are eminently qualified to lead the forum, it was said.

It is not definitely determined, but immediate plans call for a dinner to precede the forum discussion. A special committee has been set up to arrange the definite plans. County officials, as well as Assemblywoman Mrs. Edith Cheney of Corning and Assemblyman William M. Stuart of Canisteo, along with Republican County Chairman J. C. Latham and Democratic County Chairman John Cullinan of Hornell, and the committeemen of both parties, also are being invited to participate.

Farm Bureau Has Need for Farm Workers

Helping farm workers find jobs and farmers to locate experienced hands is one of the special services offered by the Steuben County Farm Bureau.

Cutside of the harvest season when hundreds of men are needed to dig and store the potato crop, the jobs are mostly for the summer season and the year.

But the employment service handles many an emergency situation, to take care of the farmer who is incapacitated by illness or injury. And its operation is more than local. Requests for men have come in the past week from farmers near New York City and in the western part of the state.

Some 860 applicants, that is, farmers and men seeking work, contacted the Farm Bureau office last year, an indication of the popularity of the service.

Just at the present time, the number of jobs is in excess of men seeking work, the Farm Bureau reports, and invites experienced farm workers, especially single men, to contact the office at Bath.

Bicycles Issued Cornell Football Training Squad

ITHACA, April 27—The first warm day of Spring football practice at Cornell was marked today by the issuance of fifty-five bicycles to the members of the squad. Simultaneously Carl Snavely, head coach, banned the use of automobiles for members of the squad during the training season for the second year. Head trainer, Frank Kavanagh, together with Coach Snavely believes that the use of bicycles last year played an important part in conditioning the athletes who went through the season undefeated and received national recognition.

Leg drive, stamina, and general fitness were some of the benefits received from the use of the bikes, according to the Cornell authorities. They cite the cases of Mort Landsberg and Alva Kelley as examples of a direct tie-up between the use of bikes and proficiency on the football gridiron.

At the end of Spring practice last year, Mort Landsberg was the fourth-string fullback. Mort was determined to break into the charmed circle.. He went about his training seriously. He rode his bike all during practice and after the season ended. He then took two days pedalling his bike to his home in Mamaroneck, Long Island. During the summer he piled up additional mileage, and he rode the bike all the way back to Ithaca to report for Fall practice.

He came back in such superb condition that when Captain Eichler, regular fullback, suffered a knee injury the coaches picked Landsberg for the number one slot, along with co-captain Kenny Brown. Landsberg emerged so suddenly that the first football program did not even carry his picture. He proved a sensation during the undefeated season, and now is regarded as one of the best men on the team.

Al Kelley of Tarentum, Pennsylvania, was a sophomore candidate for right end last Spring. He trained hard and used his bike conscientiously. Like Landsberg, he rode his bike home and all during the summer. When he came back in the Fall, he was in fine shape. He had no difficulty in capturing the wing positions. He played brilliantly all season and drew from Coach Snavely the highest praise. "Kelley is the best end I have seen at Cornell," said Carl.

Besides these two notable examples, there are many others in which the use of bikes as an adjunct to training proved successful. Pontiac

AMERICA'S FINEST LOW-PRICED CAR

THE FIRST STEP toward getting the most for your money in a new car this Spring is to visit a Pontiac showroom and take a look at the Pontiac price tags!

Then follow it up with a ride in a Pontiac. If you only drive it around the block, you'll understand why so many people have difficulty in realizing it's a low-priced car.

It's a big, wide-seated, long-wheelbase beauty. And its ride is "Triple-Cushioned." Its steering, gear shifting and all-round handling ease will put you in a very pleasant frame of mind. And, after a stop, notice particularly the smooth, quiet, powerful sweep of Pontiac's getaway.

We know you'll be crazy about this car. And delighted to discover that its price is right down with the lowest!

 Delivered at Pontiac, Mich. Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.*
